Planner and Organizer Alison Sloman 10 Points to the Short Course

Selly Park is not the most technical of areas for a street event, but Alison made good use of the area by combining route choice legs with excursions into several of the Birmingham parks. In Cannon Hill Park the fire brigade were holding an exercise, including hoses playing at full blast, near a hillock that we searched, with our head torches, for a permanent orienteering marker. I wonder which group was the more surprised and amused? I was pleased that Alison's efforts were rewarded by a good turnout, though most unusually there were no takers for the Short Course. We have been lucky with the weather this season, and once more we were able to run on a dry, though very cold night. The excellent company and chat was complemented by some delicious home cooking. Helped perhaps by some local knowledge, Colin beat Russ and seems to have the Medium Trophy sewn up. John beat Iain in the Embrey family battle; it is always very close between them. Sympathies to Brian Laycock who pulled a calf muscle on the course, and to whom we wish a speedy recovery.
