I tried to give route choice for nearly all the legs.

My question posed of what they could see from a rather gloomy passageway produced some interesting answers, and my occasional switching away from lamp post numbers to fire hydrants confused some.

I advertised at my local University Duathlon group, of which I have been a long standing memt One member brought along 6 kids which was rather a shock as the short was not really intended for juniors. I think I should really have refused to let them go as I could have been in real trouble had they been knocked down or attacked.
