

Erdington NSL 17th Feb

The combination of a dry pleasant evening, the micro-urban-O underneath spaghetti junction, good company, and Penny's cooking sent everyone home happy.

In the results I have added two minutes penalty for each incorrect answer: as the Embrey Family Rivalry was resolved by this, I subsequently checked the two controls which Iain missed, and am sure that John deserves the victory.

My Risk Assessment covered lakes and dual carriageways, competitors were warned about the were-wolves and vampires, but we (Organiser and Adviser) had not foreseen the possibility of Mike Abbott's car being kidnapped! It was completely 'boxed-in', with about six inches at either end. We couldn't find the owners of the other cars, so the HOC-Heavy-Mob piled into action, one car was moved slightly, and then Mike's car was slowly wriggled back and forth until it was able to make an escape.
