Organiser's Notes

Thank you all for coming – it made collecting the controls in at 21:15 in horizontal sleet, with a wind straight out of Siberia, bearable to know that lots of people had had a good time. Uffmoor is very spooky on your own, in the dark, with deer and foxes and owls and badgers and wall-eyed dogs and I wish I had not come across the tale of "Who Put Bella in the Wych Elm" while Googling for Uffmoor (http://www.mysteriouspeople.com/Bella_in_the_wychelm.htm) – though the elm itself was in Hagley Woods – which is just next door

I have been very lenient with punchmark assessment and there is a prize for first person to correctly guess who it was that handed in the neatest and most clearly punched card (prize is doubled if that person is also the first to guess correctly).

I aimed to keep Mr McSweeney out for the whole hour – as it was Chris got 26 out of 27 controls in just under 60 minutes.

I rechecked number 16 on Friday afternoon – it was in the correct place – with respect to all the adjacent mapped features and in terms of distance from the path.

A big thank you to Barry Houghton for promoting the HOC midweek night league – a great idea and for putting up and taking down the tent, control collecting and bringing the smelly but welcome gas heater.
